ANTIQUITY OF THE MEASLES.

People in All Times Have Suffered From This Disease.

Of course every one thinks he knows what measles is and yet very few really know more about the ailment than the fact that it is a contagious disease, characterized by sore eyes, sore nose, sore throat and an eruption of the skin.

The disease is one of great antiquity, dating as far back as A. D. 900. At that time, however, it was confounded with smallpox and scarlet fever. By many observers smallpox and measles were always regarded as one and the same disease, differing only in degree. This misinformation was not dispelled until 1870, when Sydenham, an English physician, declared that they were distinct diseases.

About the origin of measles little is known. At the present day the disease is found all over the civilized world. It is not known in uncivilized countries. It has always been claimed that the disease was due to a specific poison, but the nature of it was not known. Quite recently, however, a European bacteriologist named Caspikowski reported that he had found a micro organism in the blood of a person suffering from measles, which he believed to be the cause of the disease. Measles is unlike some other contagious diseases, in that it is no respecter of persons or places. It affects all sorts and conditions of people. What better illustration of this is needed than the present case in the first household of the land? The disease is one of the most highly contagious ailments known. It is far more contagious than smallpox, but the poison of measles contains much less vitality than that of the latter. The poison of measles exists in the breath, the blood, the tears and in the secretions from the nose and throat.

Although the disease is usually classed as one of childhood, adults sometimes suffer from it. The adult cases are usually the more severe. Infants under 6 months are generally considered exempt from the disease, although there are exceptions to the rule. Measles is generally looked upon as a necessary evil of childhood and one that deserves but little attention. In a simple case that may be all well enough, but there are usually other contingencies, and some of these should be guarded against. In almost every case the eyes become inflamed and call for attention. There is usually a bronchitis, which, if left unattended, may be followed by pneumonia and fatal termination. —San Francisco Chronicle.

PRECEDENCE QUESTION.

It Was a Matter of Importance and Annoyance In the Past.

The precedence due to guests was a matter of vast importance in the seventeenth century, which the gentleman usher at Berkeley castle was expected to have at his fingers' ends. It had become very complicated under the commonwealth. There were peers, created by the king over the water, not recognized at home. There were the members, not peers, of Cromwell's upper house, and titles of his granting which the royalists snuffed at.

Mrs. Isham writes feelingly of the trials of hostesses when etiquette was reviving a little. Neighbors are "so discontented about you for place as they be never to be reconciled again; this is a thing I do much hate. Any one shall go before me as will, and if Sir Harry Blunel asks Harolds (Harolds) before he came down, my Thinks here is so many barrels about, as none should think of place." She is very proud of a new page. "You be to see the lust of my small officer. I think it may be a pretty site to see him a Horsobuckie, and in Boots, for since he never had Boots on before; he is to call at Lee for a letter, so he is not to suit long with you. This boy as we have is good for nothing but his Boots, and that pleases Fanny, and so because he is pleased I am pleased. You will be a weary with reading these scribbled Lines, so I write you ever Lovingly Auto, E. Isham." —Longman's Magazine.

He Was Black In the Face.

One of the attendants at a local hospital, whose duty it is to apply the ether to patients about to be operated upon, often causes the doctors much annoyance by reason of his overzeal. It is rarely that he can be persuaded to apply enough of the anesthetic to produce the desired effect without continual urging on the part of the doctor who is to use the knife. The other day a patient was about to be operated upon and the old difficulty arose. "Now, doctor, he's really had quite enough," remarked the attendant. The doctor thought otherwise, and insisted upon more ether. Remonstrating against applying any more, the attendant was about to comply with the doctor's command when he suddenly jumped back, exclaiming: "My God, doctor, the patient is dying. He's black in the face!" "Of course he is you — fool," replied the doctor. "If you'll look close enough you'll find he is a negro!" —Philadelphia Record.

The Nauticus.

The idea of airtight compartments in ships was suggested by the peculiar construction of the nautilus. The shell of this animal has 40 or 50 compartments, into which air or water may be admitted, to allow the occupant to sink or float.

ERIE MEDICAL CO., Buffalo, N. Y.

A card on the outside of office door says:

"Gone to lunch. Be back in ten minutes." And the man will be there on time. That is, for some days, weeks or even months, he will. Then he will be at home occasionally for a day. He'll tell you he has a headache—a turn of cholera morbus, or maybe he'll say he had a lump in his stomach and felt too miserable to move. The lump was probably two or three ten-minute lunches condensed. They were hurried in, but they were taking their own time about getting out, or even "moving on."

This is a great mistake, but as long as there's life there's a chance to rectify mistakes. The man who "bolts" his lunches will find Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets the best friend he ever met. The "Pellets" may not hurry as much as the man does, but they will do the work for which they are intended—surely—promptly—effectually.

There is no case of biliousness, constipation, indigestion, "heart-burn," or any of the rest of the night-mare breeding brood, that these little "Pellets" will not cure. They are not disagreeable to take, neither are the effects disagreeable. They are gentle laxatives. They cure generally. There's no danger of forming a "Pellet habit." Therefore, you don't become a slave to their use.

Send 21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, and receive absolutely gratis, Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser and find out how to keep yourself and family healthy. The book contains 1008 pages, over 300 illustrations and over 680,000 copies have been sold at $1.50 each. The new edition of 500,000 copies is now being sent away absolutely free. It is a valuable medical library, complete in one volume. Address, with stamps, World's Dispensary Medical Association, No. 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

A Norwegian Farmhouse.

The furniture consists of a bare table; a sort of wooden sleeping box, 5 feet 4 inches long, filled with straw; an unvarnished wooden chair and a low bench fixed to the wall round two sides of the room. On it are the gayly painted boxes of the family, each member apparently having his or her private chest bearing the name, place of abode and date of birth of its owner, along with some more or less euphoric design. On a row of pegs placed not far from the ceiling and extending nearly round the apartment hang the Sunday clothes of the family, a suit to each peg, the trousers legs dangling down, and late on in the dusk, looking as if some unfortunate people had hung themselves in a row.

There is no carpet, no wall paper, no lath or plaster. All is good honest wood; above, below and all around; no varnish, no polish, no stain, no paint—not even on the furniture. No two-penny halfpenny much weaker boarding or half inch boards as we use in England, but great solid planks and boards which will stand the wear and tear of centuries. On the windows and doors alone is a little paint—a kind of white enamel. In a corner of the room stands a very old kettledrum, and how and why such an instrument of warfare has a place in this peaceful dwelling is for the time beyond my comprehension. There are two big windows, in one of which a pane of glass is wanting, and Sivert told me that the family are greatly concerned thereat; on my account he understood, for much ventilation is deemed an evil thing out here. An oval rusty tray is leaning against the wall. It fits the window, so far as tops and sides are concerned, leaving ample room for fresh air at the corners, so that matter is soon settled.—Chambers.

Greeting In the Pool.

The central pool at the aquarium is 80 feet in diameter. In this pool there are among other fish three handsome workfish, each weighing about a pound and a half. Sometimes the workfish swim about in company, sometimes two together and one by itself. Sometimes the three move about separately, but it seems as though they knew one another. The other day two of them started around the big pool in opposite directions. Meeting on the other side, they halted side by side in the water for a moment, as two men might halt on meeting in the street, and after (his mute greeting they started up their fins and went each its way. —New York Sun.

Recommending Vells.

Vells which are designed to enhance the loveliest complexion and improve a poor one are made of black Russian not spotted with chenille and lined with the thinnest pink tulle. These are gathered ready for use and finished with rosettes of baby ribbon at the back. White veiling with brown chenille spots is another fancy of fashion.

Police Court Colloquy.

Judge—Why don't you answer whether or not you are guilty?
Prisoner—I refuse to commit myself.
Judge—I'll save you the trouble—six months. —Philadelphia Record.

Domestic Repartee.

"After a man has reached the age of 40," said Mrs. Disbrow, "he thinks every good looking woman he sees is in love with him."
"I am sure, my dear," retorted Mr. D., "I have never accused you." —Detroit Free Press.

The first monarch to bear the title king of England was Egbert, king of Wessex, who, having subdued the other states of the heptarchy, established his dominion over the whole English territory.

The swiftest bird is the kestrel, or English sparrowhawk. It has been known to achieve a speed of 160 miles an hour.

OF NEBRASKA.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
ARTHUR SEWALL
OF MAINE.

TWO PEOPLE'S CONVENTIONS.

Two national conventions, both having the one great object—monetary reform—in view met yesterday at St. Louis. One is the National Silver party; the other the National People's party. The silver party had Hon. Francis G. Newlands of Nevada for temporary Chairman; the other had United States Senator Butler of North Carolina for the same position.

A delegate received a telegram from Senator Teller stating that the money question overshadows all others, as on its rightful determination depends the prosperity of the people and the perpetuation of republican institutions, and all other questions must be subordinated to it. He says a vote for Bryan and Sewall is a vote for the industrial and financial independence of the American people from foreign domination and they should have the support of all who oppose the gold standard.

As the goldbugs admit that Senator Teller is a clear-headed, honest man his words should have weight with the conventions. He left his party when that party abandoned the people for the trusts and monopolies. He says the money question overshadows all others and the success of Bryan means the financial independence of the American people. With such a declaration from a man of Teller's independence and patriotism, how can Taubeneck and the other Populist leaders who advocated Teller's nomination, consistently oppose Bryan? If they do so the inference is that they are traitors to the People's cause and are secretly in the service of the gold combination.

That the National Silver Convention will endorse Bryan there can be no doubt. Any other course would imply that the leaders had been purchased and that while pretending to be silver men they were doing all in their power for the gold trust. Another day will probably determine what the conventions will do and whether they have sold out to the gold men, so it is idle to speculate.

THE POPULIST NATIONAL CONVENTION.

At this writing it is undecided what the Populist National Convention will do regarding the endorsement or nomination of Bryan for President. It is openly charged by some of the delegates that Ringmaster Hanna has bribed some of the leading members of the party to oppose Bryan, and one of the delegates, a "middle-of-the-road" caucus, charged that it was not a Populist but a Republican meeting.

As has been repeatedly pointed out, the gold men are availing themselves of the opportunity to create dissensions in the ranks of the silver men by the liberal expenditure of money. Loud talkers, bribed for the occasion, are opposing the endorsement of Bryan. While claiming to be independent, they argue that the party must not be merged with the silver Democrats and silver Republicans. This is equivalent to a declaration that they will aid in the election of McKinley to the extent of getting as many votes as possible from Bryan by nominating a straight-out Populist candidate for the Presidency. That is what the Republicans want and what they are paying traitors to endeavor to accomplish. Many members of the party, who are not in with the Republicans, advocate a straight-out ticket. These, with Hanna's hirelings, make much noise, and may succeed in preventing the endorsement of Bryan, in which event the electoral vote of a few States, which would be safe for Bryan if he should be endorsed, might be endangered.

If wise counsel prevails to-day, and a third ticket is not put in the field, the money of "aggregated capital and combined greed," will not prevail against the votes of twelve millions of freemen.

THAT TERRIBLE CHARGE.

The gold standard men can find nothing in Bryan's record that is discreditable to an American citizen. Driven to desperation they prefer the terrible charge of having been born in the State of Illinois and being only 36 years of age against him. To this charge the Cleveland Plaindealer replies as follows:

"At Bryan's age Pitt had administered the British Government eleven years. Napoleon had conquered Europe and was emperor at 36, and Alexander died sighing for more worlds to conquer at 38. Byron blossomed in the garden of English literature and in the 'sere and yellow leaf' expired at 36, and the Scottish plowman composed his immortal verses and was turned beneath the sod by Time's plowshare at the age of 37."

Twelve thousand coat makers in New York have gone out on a strike and surprised the wholesale manufacturers.

SILVER CONVENTION.

Newlands of Nevada Temporary Chairman.

ENTHUSIASTIC FOR BRYAN.

A Motion That Cansed Much Excitement.

St. Louis, July 22.—The delegates to the National Silver Organization were late in assembling at Grand Music Hall and there were not enough spectators to fill the galleries when J. J. Mott, Chairman of the National Committee called the convention to order. It was long after 12 o'clock when he stepped to the platform and rapped for order. The hall had been attractively draped with flags and bunting. When Chairman Mott came forward to call the convention to order the delegates for a moment ceased to use their fans, roused from the torpor caused by the terrible heat, and indulged in some enthusiastic cheering. A prayer was offered, after which Miss Lillian B. Pierce of the city read the Declaration of Independence, causing another outburst of applause.

Chairman Mott called the convention to order at 12:30. Congressman Newlands of Nevada was introduced as temporary Chairman and addressed the convention, being received with much enthusiasm. Referring to Bryan he said: "We must accept the brilliant leader of Democracy and march with him to victory." [Loud cheers.]

When temporary Chairman Newlands finished speaking the roll was called by States to get the names of the Committee on Credentials. The following were sent as a Silver Committee to confer with the Populists: George W. Baker of California, Chairman; Judge Scott of Nebraska, W. T. Foster of Missouri, Wm. P. St. John of New York, B. F. Keith of North Carolina. The Silver Convention then adjourned until 4:30 this evening.

At 4:40 the convention was called to order by temporary Chairman Newlands. The Committee on Credentials reported and the Committee on Permanent Organization also submitted a report, which was approved.

W. P. St. John was elected permanent Chairman and addressed the convention. On motion of Baker of California a committee consisting of one member from each State was appointed to meet a similar committee from Populists to adjust differences between parties and reach an agreement whereby the nomination of Bryan and Sewall will be ratified by both conventions. California named G. W. Baker; Nevada, J. G. McCarthy, and Washington, J. R. McBride. The other members were quickly selected and the convention adjourned until 10 o'clock to-morrow.

Senator Teller Asks the Bimetallists to Endorse Bryan and Sewall.

St. Louis, July 22.—Congressman Newlands read a telegram from Senator Teller to the convention, urging it to support Bryan and Sewall, and it was received with great enthusiasm.

The Committee on Rules recommended that the rules of the present Congress be used as the rules of the convention.

The Committee on Credentials reported no contests and suggested that any portion of a State delegation present could cast the vote of the delegation. The reports were adopted.

What the Populist Platform Will Be.

St. Louis, July 22.—The Populist platform, as agreed upon by the Committee, follows closely the lines of the Omaha platform of four years ago. It accepted it will be in substance as follows: National currency, safe, sound and flexible, issued by the Government only; free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1; increase of the circulating medium; a graduated income tax; economy in the affairs of the National Government; the establishment of postal savings banks; the Government ownership of railways, telegraphs and telephones, and the reclamation for colonization purposes of lands owned by aliens and corporations and now held for speculation.

The sub-treasury feature has been dropped and the platform otherwise modified as above. Nothing further was accomplished by the Credentials Committee as regards contests.

Bryan to be the Choice.

St. Louis, July 23, 2 A. M.—The Bryan steering committee finds that it has a total of 707 pledged votes for the Nebraska on the first ballot. This is based on the most conservative and accurate figures and undoubtedly under estimates Bryan's actual strength by one hundred. When the convention meets this morning the curious anomaly will be presented of voting on Vice President first, this being one of the concessions granted the "middle-of-the-road" faction. It is conceded that a Southern man will be given the second place on the ticket in order to placate the Southerners, who are not likely to bolt. The Texas delegation will go to Bryan and have given assurance that they will not bolt. Everything points to a harmonious compromise and adjournment this afternoon.

POPULIST GOSSIP.

Ignatius Donnelly Says a Bolt is Probable.

Special to the Journal.

St. Louis, July 22.—Ignatius Donnelly, who opposes the nomination of Bryan, informed a United Press reporter tonight that in his opinion the Bryan forces will be sufficiently strong to control the convention. He added that in such an event there would undoubtedly be a bolt and that half a dozen Southern States would participate in it. A number of leading Southern Populists assert that they cannot support the Chicago ticket and that they have no alternative but to bolt if Bryan is nominated. They have had as yet no opportunity to formulate a program, but their present intention is to organize a convention immediately after the Populists adjourn and nominate a straight Populist ticket. The names most frequently suggested for the Presidency are Eugene V. Debs and Ignatius Donnelly.

Much bitterness exists between the "middle-of-the-road" men and the Bryan Democratic Populists. The first allege that their leaders have sold out. They also say that Thomas V. Cator of California, Weaver, Mrs. Mary E. Lease, Cyclone, Davis, Taubeneck and others, are working for Bryan. They are disgusted and something hot will pop to-morrow.

A Bryan Delegation Seated.

St. Louis, July 22.—The Populist Committee on Credentials met at 4 o'clock and contests were reported from Colorado, Illinois, Missouri and Wisconsin. It was decided to take them up alphabetically and after a bitter discussion the Patterson delegation from Colorado (favorable to Bryan and denounced as Democrats) was seated by a vote of 27 to 14.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be recommended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

Heavy Grain and Hay Crops—Enthusiastic for Bryan.

EDITOR JOURNAL.—I send you a few items from this section of the State in regard to crops, politics, etc., thinking they might be of some interest to your readers. The hay crop that is now being cut and stacked is the heaviest for many years. There will be 20,000 tons put up in the valley this year. The grain crop will be the heaviest harvested for many years.

The Chicago platform and nominees are entirely satisfactory to almost everyone in the valley, except a few sheep men and two or three old moss-backs, who think more of party than they do of principle and prosperity. On getting the news from Chicago the people of the town and valley, irrespective of their former political affiliations, ratified the nomination of Bryan and Sewall by firing a salute of one hundred guns and one grand hurrah for our noble standard bearer, William J. Bryan.

POPULISTS IN COUNCIL.

Temporary Organization Perfected—Butler Makes a Speech.

St. Louis, July 22.—The day for the opening of the two National Conventions broke clear and bright, in striking contrast with the dark, gloomy, dripping skies of the past two days. The crowds in the corridors of the hotels where the headquarters are located were noisy, but there was a striking absence of brass bands. Bryan and the middle-of-the-road factions both claimed a victory. The first test of strength was eagerly looked forward to.

In the same hall in which the Republican National Convention was held the Populists were called to order at 12:40 by Chairman Taubeneck. Among those on the platform with Taubeneck were Senators Peffer and Allen, Ignatius Donnelly, "Cyclone" Davis, General Weaver and Governor Stone. Chairman Taubeneck introduced Governor W. J. Stone of Missouri, who delivered an address of welcome, to which Ignatius Donnelly responded.

As the day was warm many delegates removed their coats and vests, many wearing neither collar nor cravat. Senator Butler of North Carolina, the temporary Chairman, was then introduced and loudly cheered.

In introducing Senator Butler Taubeneck said that he had been selected by the National Committee without a dissenting vote and added the belief that the convention would act with as great unanimity as had the committee in choosing the Chairman.

At the suggestion of Committeeman Washburn three cheers were given for the young Senator.

"We are here," said the Senator, "because there is need for us to be here." He referred to the fact that two parties had held charge of the Government for twenty-five years. These parties had brought the country to the verge of bankruptcy. The leaders of both had been unfaithful to their trust, hence the need of the People's party.

He referred to McKinley as the candidate of "aggregated capital and combined greed." He declared that both old parties for years had kept the greatest issues in American politics in the background and had fought sham battles. No matter whose victory lay Wall street and Lombard street won. In the meantime the Populist party, he said, organized to bring real relief to the people, had grown steadily and victoriously against greed had been won.

He described the various campaigns through which the party had passed in various States, the hardships endured and the flings and ridicule to which they had been subjected. But they had at last torn the mask from the old parties. The Republican party had been forced to align itself with the money kings of Wall street and Europe. The Democratic party was driven to the alternative to sign with gold or the people. They were so fraught that in their desperation they finally committed grand and petty larceny. "They stole our platform and tried to steal into our party."

This statement set the convention wild. "Why did they not steal our transportation plank?" shouted a California delegate.

"Ah," replied Butler, "the old Democratic habit got them there; they straddled that question."

"Whoopie," cried a thousand voices. If the People's party should abandon its organization, said Butler, the Democratic party at the next National Convention, would repudiate the platform adopted at Chicago, and Bryan would not have any more chance of being nominated than Thomas Jefferson would if he were alive to-day. The financial question had been as much the issue since 1872 as it was to-day.

"But it remained for the People's party to force this issue to the front. Right here," he said, "comes our responsibility, the greatest responsibility that ever fell to any party. Shall we save the party, or allow it to go down in defeat? Shall it be said that this great band of patriots who have broken all party ties, have allowed themselves to be controlled more by prejudice than by patriotism? If this convention," he shouted passionately, "does not follow its own teachings, it is unworthy to represent the people."

"Hurrah for Bryan" cried an Alabama delegate. "Put him out," yelled several Texas delegates. "What shall we do?" was asked by Butler.

"Nominat Bryan," replied some Alabama delegate.

"Shut up; put him out," shouted several hundred voices.

"Is he a Democrat?" called out someone.

"Yes; no," were intermingled cries.

Butler, waving his arms appealingly, to secure quiet, said: "Whom the gods wish to destroy they first make mad." Every time you interrupt me you endanger yourselves. This convention has not been crushed by either of the parties, and will not be stamped out.

"Our duty is to approve what is right and condemn what is wrong. I am telling you what you will find when you get home. I have been down among the countless farmers of my State, and I know what I say is true. I tell you they expect us to rise to the level of patriotism and travel the path of conscience. It is the duty of all Populists to stand by what they taught in the past."

He believed that the convention was going to do what was wisest, and added: "We shall stand together; go away united; strip our coats for the fray, and be prepared for any emergency, however great."

"Remember that you are the People's party men. Remember that you have accomplished more in four years than the old parties. Do your duty now, you will very soon be the party of the majority."

Butler closed amid tremendous applause. The States were called for members of the Committee on Credentials. After the call the convention at 2:10 took a recess until 8 to-night.

Darkness Causes an Adjournment of the Populist Convention.

St. Louis, July 22.—It is raining heavily here to-night, but the storm has caused no lack of interest.

The Populist Convention met at 8 p. m., but owing to trouble with the electric light wires in the building, the hall was in comparative darkness. Men were put to work searching for the trouble and during the delay the delegates passed the time singing and listening to the music of the band.

At 8:45, the convention took a recess, but shortly after it was reported that the break in the electric wires could not be located to-night, so the convention adjourned until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning.

AGAINST MCKINLEY AND GOLD.

The Butte, Montana, Inter-Mountain, the leading Republican paper of the State, has flung the silver banner to the breeze and will hold it aloft until the mints are opened for the coinage of silver as well as gold. The Inter-Mountain is owned and controlled by United States Senator Mantel. It pledges to contend against the forces of McKinley and the gold trust. It will support W. J. Bryan for President of the United States. It places patriotism above partisanship, prosperity above personal considerations and will contend for the interests of the masses of the people against the trusts and gold gamblers, which control the Republican organization, and the Cleveland and Whiteites of the Democratic party.

The people inhabiting the planets in the solar system of Gamma have no need of electricity, gas, oil or other kinds of artificial light. In those favored worlds they have continuous daylight, and probably have no idea of a land like ours which is alternately bathed in sunlight and plunged into darkness. The Gammaean planets are so situated that as soon as one of their three suns begins to decline another appears in sight. Each of these three suns is of a different color—red, yellow and blue.—St. Louis Republic.

The London man of former generations, by which I mean the west end man, led a comparatively quiet life, and having had a classical education, read every book that came out, went to every new play, and became the recognized judge and patron of literature and the arts. The conditions of today have entirely changed the west end man in this respect. He now seldom reads anything but the news or the Stock Exchange quotations. It is the west end woman who reads, and therefore the majority of authors write to suit her taste. Even admitting the contention that the women of our time are better cultivated and more experienced in such matters than they were formerly, the tone of the literature of today shows the injurious is the altered condition of the man.

A quarter of a century ago every year a book or books were published which from that moment had to be added to the standard literature of the language. Now years pass by without one such work being produced. As a matter of fact, at this moment the judgment of the provinces and of the colonies is of more value than that of the west end in this respect, for the men in the former have the leisure to read and the ability to discriminate for themselves. The best literary reputations of our generation have not been made by first obtaining the approval of the west end, but by first obtaining popularity in the provinces and in the colonies. The London literary reputations have been attained through what is popularly called "log rolling."—London Truth.

India Rubber Glass.

Scarcely a month passes without our being informed of some new application of glass in art or commerce, but there is one form of glass which is unknown to most people—namely, soft glass or glass paste. Yet it is hundreds of years old.

The old Roman glass makers carried to the grave their secret method of preparing glass paste which they modeled cold, just as a model clay. This malleable glass, in which you could get the impression of your finger exactly as with dough, gave off a most pleasant perfume.

Another variety made by the Romans had qualities similar to rubber. If it was thrown down it rebounded, if struck with a hammer it yielded and immediately resumed its original shape. It is related that the Emperor Theodosius ordered a woman's head to be cut off so that he should not reveal the secret, the reason given for this not being that if the method of preparation became known people would think no more of gold than of dirt.

The secret of the manufacture of glass paste died with the Roman artists and has never been discovered. Now we have a man, an eminent sculptor, who has an all equipped chemical laboratory, has succeeded in producing a glass paste similar to that described in ancient writings. You can drive nails into it as you can into lead.—Pearson's Weekly.

A Friend, Sensitive Hen.

He was being interviewed on the poultry business, when he said: "I don't want to boast, but I do think we have got the best of the world in the world in our kind of the town. I have a flock of 250, all black. It is a theory of mine that black hens lay better than those of any other color. One day I found a hen in my flock with a few white feathers in her tail. I called the hired man and told him to catch and kill her. 'You can't rely on the laying capabilities of a hen with white feathers,' I said. The head gave me a sorrowful look, but did not say a word."

"Next morning the hired man told me that he could not find it. A month or two later, he had a pile of potatoes. I told him to tell the seller and found a big hollow space in the center of them. There was a bunch of black feathers in the place, with three white ones standing up in a different sort of way. Behind the feathers were 66 eggs. I recognized at once that it was the work of the missing hen. The proud, sensitive creature had stowed herself away and worn herself out laying eggs to prove that the theory was a mistaken one."—Wabash Times.

Journalism.

William Black, the novelist, was once a letter writer for the London News. When asked the other day what he thought of journalism as a literary training, he answered: "I don't know that it was of any particular value in my case, but journalism is most useful in the making of a novelist in that it gives him experience of a large sphere of life, but to get the fullest amount of such experience a man ought to be a reporter. There is now quite a remarkable group of novelists who have been journalists. But journalism itself has undergone a remarkable change since I worked at it. In the last 20 years the newspaper has become a magazine compared with what it was. The daily newspaper is now ready to take anything on any subject—literature, science, art—from anybody, providing only it is interesting."

ANYONE CAN BE A COMPOSER WITH-OUT KNOWING A NOTE.

You Suggest the Idea, and the Song is Written While You Wait—Salaried Poets
Are in Attendance to Furnish the Words.
Your Name Goes on the Sheet.

Do you want to be known as a composer of music? It is the easiest thing in the world.

You may not know one note from another, but that doesn't matter. A few days ago a representative of The Examiner went to visit a local musician of repute. Before the musician stood a superb young woman. She was whistling.
Her ripe, red lips had on them a most tempting pucker. She whistled a few notes and stopped. Then the musician, who was armed with a sheet of music
score paper and a lead pencil, made hieroglyphics on the lines and spaces on the sheet. This was repeated several times.

"There," said the girl, "that is all."
A sardonic smile glittered for an instant on the musician's face and was gone. He stepped to a piano and played the melody as it had been whistled to him, at the same time improvising an accompaniment.

"Well?" said the girl interrogatively.

She had not the faintest idea of harmony or counterpoint. She could not sing.

"I must change it some," said the musician.

"Oh, yes, I expected that," said she.
"I furnish the musical idea and you do
the back work."

Once more there was a glimmer of fun in the musician's eyes. He requested the girl to call again in a few days.
"I will have one of our poets write words for it," said he, "and when you come again you can see how you like it.
You will see how they go together."

"Of course my name will go on the sheet when it is published!"

"Certainly. Do you want to be known as the author of the words?"

The girl blushed rather painfully.
The heightened color made her look rather more superb. She was a tall, willowy brunette, with glowing black eyes and a rich olive complexion, on which her blush played prettily. Her attire was fashionable and the fit was perfect. Altogether she was what Tito Barnacle would have called "a well groomed young woman." Her ears and hands were small and aristocratic. Her manner, now that she had stopped pickering her lips to whistle, was a little haughty. Evidently she had not previously thought about the words of the song. The Mephistophelean suggestion of the musician was tempting. His hair was literary as well as musical disten-tion. She took it all, musical and literary, but, hook and line, with a little gasp. It has been said that "it is just as well to be hung for a sheep as for a humb," and she adopted that view with little hesitation. When the music sheet comes out, with a sentimental title, this rosy brunette will be heralded as both musician and poetess.

This is not an uncommon occurrence
in San Francisco, so it was said by those who ought to know. A local music publisher put out a list of about 500 San Francisco compositions last year, and,
according to the head of the firm, very few appeared as they were originally conceived. What appeared to be odd about the episode first mentioned was the perfection of the facilities furnished
for taking down a musical composition.

The musician wrote on his music score paper with the speed and certainty of a stenographer. In fact, he was for the time a musical amanuensis. When the girl had left him, he became the poor
composer in fact.

George W. Hetzel comes in contact with many people who have musical ideas without musical knowledge. He literally takes notes as they reveal their ideas. Being a composer, he is versed in the knowledge necessary to make these ideas practicable. He is compelled to cast the tune for the range of voice for which it is best adapted. People whistle, sing, play the banjo and thump the piano at him. Then he turns the idea into a musical composition. Hugo V.
Schlam of the musical publishing firm of Broder & Schlam furnished some amusing facts. Mr Schlam says that only popular songs, which are in the range of ordinary singers, and dance tunes are composed on the plan here indicated. It is not difficult for any person with a musical idea to get a song, words and music, credited to him. When the composition is ready for publication it has little resemblance to the idea of the reputed author. Very likely the originator has a little story that he desires to have "worked up" into a song, but the words are beyond him or her, and a paid poet has to do this work. Well to do people, in the financial sense, and often poorer people are willing to assume authorship with very little claim to it. Variety singers sometimes adopt this method of gaining fame.

An odd case was mentioned by Mr.
Schlam. An elderly bachelor resides in San Francisco, who, early in life, lost his childish sweetheart. She fell over a cliff into the ocean. Her body was never recovered. He was so shocked by the occurrence which he witnessed, having just been playing with the little girl,
that he has never married. His melancholy has increased with the flight of years. Recently he caused a song—based on this early experience, the music and words of which were composed for him —to be published. His name is on the cover of the music sheet as composer.

One explanation of such phenomena
is that music is published very cheaply.
The cost of 100 copies is only about $30
if the cover of the music is plain. There were 80,000 musical compositions turned out from American presses last year.
Hardly more than a dozen songs were a popular success. This need not deter the musically ambitious, who can, if they find the proper place, become composers
"while they wait."

Sympathies of the Maine household

Brought a Breeze to a Condemned Man.
General Harrison's paper on "This Country of Ours" in Ladies' Home Journal treats of "The Pardoning Power and Impeachment." Of the former he cites an incident in showing the apprehensive responsibilities it places upon the shoulders of a president. He says:

"A reprieve is a temporary suspension of the execution of a sentence.
This power is often used for the purpose of giving the president time to examine an application for a pardon or to enable the condemned to furnish further evidence in support of such an application. In the summer of 1839 an application for a pardon in behalf of a man condemned to death for murder
was presented to me, and after a careful examination the application was denied. On the day before the day fixed for the execution I arrived at Bar Harbor on a visit to Mr. Blaine, and found that just before my arrival a telegram had come asking for a reprieve. The message had been telephoned to Mr.
Blaine's house and received by Mrs.
Blaine. Her sympathies and those of the whole household were at once enlisted for the poor fellow, and though the gibbet was over twelve hundred miles away
the shadow of it was over the house, and I was the hangman. A telegram to the United States marshal granting a short reprieve was sent, and the day of the execution was again my uncomfortable secret. It is not a pleasant thing to have the power of life and death.

"No graver or more oppressive responsibility can be laid upon a public officer. The power to pardon includes the power to commute a sentence—that is, to reduce it. When the sentence is death, the president may commute it to imprisonment for life or for any fixed term, and when the sentence is imprisonment for life or for a fixed term of years he may reduce the term of imprisonment, and if a fine is imposed he may reduce the amount or remit it."

WHERE NO CLOUD OBSCURES.

On the Planet Mars the Weather is Almost Always Fine.

Let us now remark that the Martian meteorology is less complicated and more pleasant than that of the earth.
There the weather is almost always fine, especially during summer. Very seldom are there clouds even in winter.
Generally when we are unable to distinguish through the telescope the details of the geographical configuration upon the planet the fault is in our own atmosphere and not in that of Mars. It is very rarely the case that when our atmospheric conditions are good we are unable to see these details. During the last period of observation of Mars in 1894, I, to speak for myself, encountered only 15 days (from Oct. 10 to 25) when the surface of the planet was veiled by its own atmosphere. Clouds are excessively rare on the surface of Mars, and perhaps exist at all only as fog or light cirrus; they are not clouds of rain or storm. These veils are very infrequent there, while they are perpetual upon the earth. Probably there is not a single day in the year when the entire surface of the earth is uncovered so that it could be satisfactorily observed from space.
The two planets have two meteorological systems that are absolutely anti-thetical.

Furthermore, in the rarefied atmosphere of Mars there can be no powerful winds, like the trade winds and the predominant atmospheric currents which rule terrestrial climates. Occasionally, however, observers have noted long streaks of snow which appear to have been produced by currents in a tranquil atmosphere. Schiaparelli, for instance, observed such streaks ("tracce") in November and December, 1881, around the northern pole and extending a considerable distance from it. But such things are exceptions. The normal condition upon Mars is fine weather.—Cu-
